

I strongly oppose any attempt by the Consumer Bankers Association (CBA), or anyone else for that matter, to weaken Indiana's telephone "do not call list" laws. I would urge the FCC to deny any and all requests to modify Indiana's existing law. I really don't care if these organizations are claiming that an established business relationship exists. In my mind that is irrelevant. I don't want to be harrassed, and that is exactly what these calls are, by telemarketing calls at any time. If I want a service or product, I will initiate the call!

Thanks for denying the CBA's request.
